Engaging in global health: Controversies and solutions

Monday 14th March 2011

Organised by the Royal Society of Medicine and THET

Venue: Royal Society of Medicine

This one day conference will provide an overview of some of the current debates on global health. It will critically examine the effectiveness of healthcare interventions and provide an understanding of the current evidence base for different global health policies.

Delegates will have the opportunity to attend a selection of workshops to learn about what works, directly from those involved in the frontline of global health.

Workshops include:

- Maternal and child health issues
- Planning and prioritising in emergency humanitarian work
- Engaging students and young doctors
- Infectious diseases

"Connecting Communities" All Party Parliamentary Group

You are invited to attend, and encouraged to invite your MP to attend, the "Connecting Communities" all-party parliamentary group (APPG) meeting. It is being held in Committee Room 5 in the House of Commons at 1.00pm on Tuesday 1st February. These APPG meetings provide an opportunity for organisations to impress on politicians some of the good things that are happening in our society and encourage greater Government support.

Andrew Lansley the Secretary of State for Health has been invited and it will be an opportunity to impress on him and other MPs who will be attending, the importance of Health Care Partnerships between health institutions in UK and in the developing world, both in terms of bringing better health care to developing countries but also the benefits that accrue to the NHS in terms inter alia of the professional development of those involved in the link and the benefits that can be gained by seeing health care in a completely different context.

If you would like to write to your MP requesting his/her presence at this meeting, there is a sample letter available here. Please send it to your MP at the House of Commons, Westminster, London SW1A 0AA.

IHLFS Reporting Workshop

In the run up to the January 31st report submission the IHLFS team will be running a Reporting Workshop for IHFLS grantees. The workshop focus on the Large and Project (Medium) grant progress reporting formats, looking at the types of information required in each section and reviewing common mistakes and FAQs from the first round of reports in July.
